Maybe you have never seen a miracle before and have always wanted to. Or maybe you have seen miracles before and think they are fantastic, so you would love to see another miracle. Or maybe you are just curious about miracles. For whatever reason, if you would like to see an amazing miracle, there is a really good chance that you will get to see one now! For there is a very common and yet amazing miracle that has been happening all over the place, and hopefully you can now see it with your own eyes and experience it for yourself! The reason we say “hopefully you can now see it” instead of “you will definitely see it” is because a relatively small percentage of people do not have the physical differences, described in the next section, that are needed for the miracle to occur, and there is also a small percentage of people for whom the miracle does not seem to work for some unknown reason. If you wind up being in this second “unknown reason” category, we certainly would not want you to feel bad about it. But with this disclaimer in place, feel free to read on to see if this amazing miracle will work for you!

Please note that what follows is written as if you are in the high percentage of people for whom the miracle will actually work...

Miracle Description

Most people have different length legs where one leg is at least one-quarter inch shorter than the other, and usually it is closer to one-half inch difference or more. Over many years of walking, the shorter leg bears more weight and in turn can cause both leg and back problems, especially for the shorter leg that has taken more of the weight burden, and also for the back on the opposite side of the shorter leg. People go over and over again to expensive chiropractors to try to help with these problems, but this amazing miracle solves the leg difference problem by having the shorter leg grow out to the exact length of the longer leg – in just seconds! And if people have had leg and back pain due to the leg length difference, that pain often goes away as well!

We find this miracle especially amazing when we think about all of the different parts of the leg that instantly grow: skin, bones, muscles, ligaments, cartilage, etc.!

Another result of this miracle is that the person becomes taller due to the leg growth. This can be nice for their being able to reach things they just could not quite reach before, and also for seeing over things that they were not quite tall enough to see over. A bonus result is that the person’s feet often grow out to equal lengths, too!

One thing to note is that some people would rather be shorter than taller. Fortunately, this miracle can be done to shorten a longer leg instead of growing a shorter leg. So if you would prefer to be shorter instead of taller, then please adjust the following instructions accordingly.

Legal Disclaimer

The instructions that follow are safe, and yet it is possible that as you do them, someone carrying a cup of very hot coffee could walk into the room you are in, trip over you, and scald you with the coffee. So, we hope you are not offended that we took this precautionary step to safeguard ourselves against some lawsuit-happy person (we assume that is not you). As such, we worked out the following legal disclaimer with a lawyer from a well known law firm:

Although we hope for good results for you through the steps that follow, we do not in any way guarantee particular results or assume any liability for injuries sustained while completing the steps.

With this said, we will now continue with the instructions...

Preparation for the Miracle

First we need a volunteer who would like to have their legs become the same length. So as long as you are willing to see this miracle on yourself, we are all set – assuming that your legs are different lengths (later we will explain an easy way to see if your legs are the same or different lengths). But if you would rather not be the miracle recipient, or if later when measuring leg lengths, you find that your legs are the same length, then maybe you could find a friend or family member that would like to see the miracle on themselves. If the volunteer is not you, then you can easily adjust the steps for the miracle to work on them instead of you.

Now assuming you are the volunteer, and that you indeed have different length legs, you will have all the benefits described earlier, plus the added benefit of feeling your leg grow out – which is an interesting feeling as things grow and move around. And just in case you are concerned about pain, it might feel a little strange as things grow, but it will not hurt at all!

In addition to the volunteer, you will need two things that will be helpful in determining leg length difference. One is a wall that you can sit against, and the other is something to wear on your feet that have a firm heel – such as a pair of sneakers, shoes, or boots.

To prepare for the miracle, you will first need to determine which leg is longer. Please take the following steps to determine this:

1. Sit on the floor with your back firmly against a wall and your legs outstretched.
Note: If you do not have an available wall nearby that has a clearing wide enough for you to sit against with your legs outstretched, you could instead sit against a closed closet door or even a piece of furniture such as a couch – just as long as it has an even surface for you to sit against that will not move.
Note: If your body is not flexible and you therefore find it difficult to sit with your back firmly against a wall with your legs flat on the ground, you could instead sit in a non-rolling chair with a firm seat and back, outstretch your legs as much as they will permit you to, and place your feet on the floor.
2. Place your legs together.
3. Put the heels of your feet together.
4. Point the toes of each foot away from the other, but keep your heels together so that it is easy to see your heels (making a V shape with your feet).
5. At the point of the V where your heels touch, look at the bottom of your heels to see which of your legs is shorter and which one is longer. In other words, the heel that is furthest away from your eyes (i.e. the heel that sticks out furthest) is part of your longer leg.
Note: If you are having a hard time seeing this clearly, you may want to ask someone to check it for you, since they could take a closer look at your heels than you can in how you are sitting.

Also, you may feel like doing a height comparison to see how much your height changes as a result of the miracle. If you have a standard way to measure your height, you may want to make note of your height before the miracle so that you can then compare it to your height after the miracle. If you do not have a standard way to measure your height, you can use the following alternative technique that will not give you your exact height change, but will at least give you a way to compare the change. To do this alternative technique, just take off your sneakers/shoes/boots and socks, take a pencil or pen, stand near a wall with your feet flat on the ground and with your big toes touching the wall. Reach as high as you can with the arm that is on the same side as your shorter leg. Place the hand of that arm on the wall as high as you can but with your feet still flat on the floor. Lastly, with the pencil or pen in your other hand, mark the wall above the middle finger of the hand you have against the wall. After the leg growing miracle you can do this again to see the difference between the new line and the old line.

Besides measuring your height, you may also want to see if your feet are different lengths, since often with this miracle, the shorter foot will grow out to the length of the longer foot. So if you would like to compare the length of your feet, all you need to do is to take off your sneakers/shoes/boots and socks, stand with your back against a wall, put the heels of your feet against the wall, put your big toes from each foot next to each other, and see which one is longer.

Lastly, once you see the miracle you may possibly begin to question what you saw, since such miracles may be outside of your normal way of looking at things. So, feel free to ask a friend or family member if they would like to see the miracle occur. This way you can compare notes after seeing the miracle to determine if you both observed the same thing.

Now with all of this preparation done, you are ready to see the miracle...

Doing the Miracle

So on your feet, you are wearing something with firm heels (such as a pair of sneakers, shoes, or boots), you are sitting on the floor with your back firmly against the wall, your legs are outstretched, your heels are together, but your toes from each foot are pointed away from each other (making a V shape with your feet), and you have been able to determine which leg is shorter by looking at the heels of your feet.

Now to do the miracle, you will need to use a key name that has the needed authority to cause miracles to happen. In other words, none of us can make this miracle occur on our own, but fortunately, we are permitted to use a key name that has tremendous authority to cause miracles to happen! This is similar to a child not having money for a bus ride, but their parent pays for two tickets and gives one ticket to the child right before the two of them get on the bus. As the child gives the ticket to the bus driver, the bus driver accepts and honors the ticket as sufficient passage and in turn allows the child to take a seat on the bus. Similarly, this key name gives you the rights needed for this miracle to occur. Later on we will let you know why this key name worked for this miracle, but for now, you can get even more value out of this miracle by first trying other names that will not work. So with your right hand on the thigh of your shorter leg, feel free to say any of the following sentences that use names that will not work.

So far, you did not see any change of leg length, correct?

Feel free to try other names as well...

In the name of _____, left/right leg grow out.

Warning: What follows uses a key name that when you hear it, may invoke negative thoughts and/or feelings within you. But, we assure you that the name is absolutely wonderful and is a key to so much more that we will explain later.

If you happened to have already used the key name that we will describe next, then you most likely just saw the miracle. But if you have not yet used this key name, please now try the key name that works by putting your right hand on the thigh of your shorter leg and saying:

Wow, did you just see an amazing miracle? If so, not only did your shorter leg grow to the exact length of your longer leg, but you are also now taller than before! So if you are doing a standard height comparison, you can now measure your new height to see the difference. And if you are using the alternative height comparison technique described earlier, you can now draw a new line to see the difference between the old line and the new line.

Also, if earlier you had compared the length of your feet and now you would like to check to see if your shorter foot grew, you can compare your foot length by first taking off your sneakers/shoes/boots and socks. Then stand with your back against a wall, put the heels of your feet against the wall, put your big toes from each foot next to each other, and see if they are now the same length. If so, then great! If not, sometimes the miracle happens in two parts: one part for the leg and the second part for the foot. Therefore, if your feet are still different lengths, feel free to put your right hand on your shorter foot and say, "In the name of Jesus, foot grow out." Did you just now see another miracle? If so, super!

And if you had back pain, if you walk around, is it better now? If so, then yea!

Assuming that you just now saw at least one amazing miracle with your leg growing out, the big question becomes: Why did the miracle actually work?

In the next section we will explore what we consider to be both a fascinating and amazing explanation. So, if you would like to know why, please feel free to read on. If not, we are glad for you that you at least hopefully enjoyed seeing an amazing miracle!

Miracle Explanation

So, the big question is, "Why did the miracle that you were able to see with your very own eyes actually happen?"

Before explaining why, we first would like to pause to make what we consider to be a very important point, and that is for us to highly honor your free will. What we mean by this is that as we explain why the miracle happened, followed by giving you ideas of what we think is really good to do in light of the explanation, we in no way want to have even a hint of sales manipulation. In other words, there are many times when someone will give you a sales pitch, and in that sales pitch they try to make it sound as though it is only for your benefit, when in reality their main motive is to try to manipulate you into buying what they want you to buy, so that they in turn can make money. Since sales manipulation is so prevalent, we would like to state up front our desire to not manipulate you in any way, but to simply state our explanation and recommendations, and to give you the complete freedom to choose what you would like to do with them – whether something or nothing. With this disclaimer in place, we now feel the freedom to continue with the explanation...

The reason the miracle occurred was because there is this very-much-more-than-we-can-realize incredible, wonderful, amazing, and invisible being who took the time and effort to grow the many things needed for the miracle to take place – such as bone, tissue, etc.

So, the next big question is, “Why did this amazing being actually do this miracle for you?”

The reason this being did this miracle on your behalf is so that you could know that this being actually exists, loves you and values you, and in this love and value desires your very best. In this context, the very best that this being can offer you is a close relationship of friendship with this being – first for your sake, not first for the sake of this being. And because this being has such tremendously selfless love for you, this being will not force friendship upon you, but allows you instead to go through the discovery process of coming to know that this being exists, desires a close friendship with you, and allows you the total free choice as to whether you would like to accept or reject that friendship offer.

So if you would like to accept this being’s friendship offer to you, then you will probably want to know four things:

- Thing 1: How can you be a friend with an invisible being?
- Thing 2: Who is this being?
- Thing 3: What is involved in such a friendship?
- Thing 4: How does one accept the friendship offer?

If you would like to know about these four things, feel free to read on...

Thing 1: How can you be a friend with an invisible being?

To be a friend with this invisible being requires that you are able to know that this being actually exists, even if you cannot see this being with your eyes. It is like a blind person having friends, even though they cannot physically see those friends. The blind person has ways other than sight in which they can know and interact with those friends. And fortunately, this being is not only able to demonstrate that this being exists by invisibly working in the miracle you experienced, but this being can also give you the needed ability to know for sure that this being truly exists. This is similar to you walking into a dark room and turning on a light to be able to see what is in the room. So, this being is able to activate a light in you, so to speak, so that you can not only know the reality that this being actually exists, but you can also have a wonderful friendship with this being! Later on, we will explain more about how you can turn on this light by asking this invisible being to turn on the light for you.

As a side note, you may wonder why this being stays invisible most of the time. Part of the answer is that if this being showed up visibly, a person would be so overwhelmed by the greatness of this being, that it would make it harder for the person to go through the discovery process of finding this being and having the free choice as to whether they would like to accept or reject the friendship offer of this being.

Thing 2: Who is this being?

So, who is this being?

Since people can have very different definitions for the same word, we will first give you a further definition of this being before giving you the name of this being.

Some of the characteristics and desires of this being were described in an earlier paragraph. Here is a quote of that paragraph with some of those characteristics and desires emphasized in bold font.

The reason this being did this miracle on your behalf is so that you could know that this being actually exists, loves you and values you, and in this love and value desires your very best. In this context, the very best that this being can offer you is a close relationship of friendship with this being – first for your sake, not first for the sake of this being. And because this being has such tremendously selfless love for you, this being will not force friendship upon you, but allows you instead to go through the discovery process of coming to know that this being exists, desires a close friendship with you, and allows you the total free choice as to whether you would like to accept or reject that friendship offer.

So, we can see that this being has tremendous characteristics and desires. But it is even more than was just described. Here is an expanded list of these characteristics and desires:

- This being is always perfect in motives.
- This being values you tremendously.
- This being is never partial and never commits an injustice.
- This being never lies.
- This being is incredibly knowledgeable and wise.
- This being always has selfless love toward you.
- This being always desires your very best.
- This being always desires that you value yourself.
- This being always desires that you would know that you are very significant.
- This being knows you completely – even more than you know yourself.
- This being never makes a mistake.
- This being always desires that you would be freed up into the very best for your life.
- This being's character and desires have always been consistently good, and will always continue to be so.
- This being desires a close friendship with you – first for your sake, not first for the sake of this being – since this is the greatest gift that this being can give to you!

So, who is this being with such wonderful and amazing characteristics and desires?

This being goes by a name that I, Scott, used to not like because of the negative concepts I had associated with the name. But now, I really like the term “God” because I now see “God” as having all of these wonderful and amazing characteristics and desires.

So, realizing the term “God” may still have negative connotations for you, feel free to substitute a term such as “The Source of Love” or “The Amazing One” if that would work better for you – since “God” is just a label for the amazing being that we described earlier.

From this point forth we will refer to this being as God and also as He/Him/His, etc., even though God is gender neutral – having both male and female characteristics.

Thing 3: What is involved in such a friendship?

Many people think that God is trying to impose His will upon them in His wanting them to do things that are foreign to whom they truly are. And accordingly, they think that God just wants them to perform certain boring religious duties for some unknown reason. But, if we look at the last of the characteristics and desires listed earlier, we see:

- This being desires a close friendship with you – first for your sake, not first for the sake of this being – since this is the greatest gift that this being can give to you!

If our starting place is friendship, then a whole different picture emerges. It is a picture of two close friends (you and God) growing in deeper friendship. And the more you discover about God, the more amazed you will be at how absolutely amazing and wonderful He is! And to enjoy and appreciate God is the most rewarding thing possible in this life and throughout eternity!

Not only do you get to grow in your enjoyment of God (which is by far the best thing in life now and through eternity), but you also get to join Him in a privileged partnership of friendship where you get to tag along with God in things that He is doing. More specifically, God has perfect love toward others, and as you hang out with Him, you will find that you will pick up on His love for others, and in turn you will have more love for them. In this, God's love will become the basis for you being able to love and value God, yourself, and others, since it is based upon His unchangeable perfect love and not upon other things that can so easily change – such as how your feelings might change when someone does something for you that you like, but in the next moment does something that you do not like. And growing in this consistent love provides a tremendous foundation for your friendships with others to flourish.

In addition to this, since God knows the future and is so much smarter than we can even begin to fathom, He knows the very best things for us to do in our friendship partnership with Him. And God offers this guidance to you as a gift if you are willing to use your free will to receive it. Once again, this is not God imposing this upon you, but freely offering it to you. In this, God will guide you sometimes through inspiration – where you will find yourself inspired to do something and then, as you do that thing, you will discover that it was God invisibly guiding you all along. At other times, it will be His direct guidance for you to do a certain thing with Him – even if at first you do not understand the value of doing that thing. But, as you follow His guidance, He will often teach you as you go with Him, and over time, you will get to see what He already knew was the very best before He gave you the initial guidance to go in such a direction.

It can be a lot of fun participating with God in what He is doing – even miracles such as legs growing out, miraculous instant healings, and more! And being able to see the positive effects upon others is a real treat as God gives you things to do that not only build great friendships, but also help others in great ways. For example, God may give you wise insights for you to offer to a person, such as something they can do that will help their marriage. And if that person looks to God to help them apply those insights, then you may get to enjoy seeing how it is so helpful to them, their spouse, and to any kids they might have. They in turn will most likely appreciate you being of help to them. And all of this can help in growing your friendship with them. Another example is that we have enjoyed partnering with God as He miraculously grows out people's legs, and if in turn they no longer have to deal with chronic back pain, then we are all the happier for them!

Even though there are so many wonderful aspects of being in a privileged partnership of friendship with God (even more than we have listed so far), there is also a very challenging part of friendship with God. And that is the trials and refining He will take you through so that you can be freed up and grow to be more like God in His wonderful friendship characteristics and desires. And through this growth, you will be able to participate better and more fully with God in the wonderful things that He is doing.

In our lives, we at times find the trials and refining to be a very challenging process, but also incredibly worthwhile, since through this process God grows us in relational abilities and characteristics that enable us to enjoy Him more and to be better friends to Him, others, and even ourselves. This is similar to the military taking a soldier through a grueling boot camp. At times the soldier may wonder if it is really worth it. But in the long run, the soldier will wind up being in great physical condition and much better equipped for the challenges of military life.

There are also challenges that may not seem obvious at first, in that there are demonic forces that hate God with all their being (which is a whole other story as to why), and because of your association with God, these demonic forces will hate and tempt you all the more. And they will tempt others to hate and be mean to you as well. But as you learn to forgive, love, and to be kind to such people by God's love and help, you will become all the more equipped and it will be all the easier for you to love and be a friend toward those who are much easier to deal with. So, although this aspect of life with God can be quite challenging at times, in the long run it will become clear that this process is incredibly worthwhile, and you will be eternally grateful for it!

Thing 4: How does one accept the friendship offer?

If you would like to enter into and participate in a privileged partnership of friendship with God that was previously described in the "Thing 3" section, then how can you actually do this?

First of all, you would need to be willing to commit your life to God for all of the things described in the "Thing 3" section, since these things are needed for your friendship with God to work well. So, if this is what you would like to do with your life and you are willing for these things, then feel free to read on for how to actually accept God's friendship offer to you...

Note: The following may be a little hard to understand at first (at least it was for us), but the more we learn about it, the more amazed we are at how wonderful it is! So, how can we explain it so that it is easy for you to understand? We will attempt to do so by first starting with the following metaphor.

Suppose you have a friendship with someone, and that person does something really mean to you that you thought was totally unjustified. What would be needed to restore your friendship with that person? Most likely the person would need to apologize to you and you would need to be willing to forgive them. Otherwise a relational barrier would still remain between the two of you.

In a similar way, all relational barriers between you and God would need to be removed in order for you to be able to enter into a privileged partnership of friendship with God.

So, you would need to be willing to apologize to God for anything you have done against Him. And since God has given everyone their existence, you would also need to be willing to apologize to God for anything you have done against others and even against yourself – since such things indirectly go against God as well.

So, if you are willing to say to God something like:

Please forgive me for all of the things that I have ever done against You, others, and even myself. I am sorry I did them in the first place, and I look to You to help me to avoid such things in the future.

Then will God forgive you and remove all of the relational barriers between you and Him?

We can find the key to answering this question by looking at the leg growing miracle. Why did the key name of Jesus work, but all of the other names did not work? What this shows us is that there is something very significant about the name of Jesus. Not only is the name of Jesus key for the leg growing miracle, but it also holds the key for you being able to truly receive forgiveness from God and to come into a close friendship with Him. So, if we can first understand who Jesus is and what Jesus did for us, it is the key that we need.

Jesus lived on earth over 2,000 years ago and was both ordinary and extraordinary. Jesus was ordinary in that He was very down-to-earth, relational, and approachable. Jesus was incredibly extraordinary in that He had the fullness of God dwelling in Him. In other words, God did an incredibly amazing thing by coming down to earth as a human – taking on both human characteristics and also characteristics unique to God. In Jesus' humanness, He got hungry and tired, felt pain, and experienced normal human emotions. In His divine nature, Jesus had all of the amazing characteristics and desires of God that we looked at earlier.

And the amazing thing Jesus did for you was something He really did not want to do because of how painful and ugly it would be. Much worse than having to do chores that He did not feel like doing. Much worse than having to go to a job that He did not feel like going to. Instead, it was sacrificing His very life to pay for all the things humans have done that have worked against them being able to love God, others, and themselves. This was not only for humans of that day, but for all humans: past, present, and future.

Side note: From this point forward, we will use the term “relational violations” to represent all of the things humans do that work against them being able to love God, others, and themselves. This even includes things that are not easily seen as working against someone being able to love God, others, and themselves, but in reality are things that actually do so and in turn contribute toward the forming of relational barriers.

What had occurred was that the government of Jesus’ day thought they were simply executing Jesus to please the religious people who had wanted Jesus to be killed. Those people did not like Jesus doing many miracles and promoting relational friendship that in turn made them look bad in their non-relational religiousness. They were also jealous of Jesus’ popularity. On top of this, Jesus claimed to be God – which those people considered to be blasphemous (in other words, a really bad thing to do in their view). Because of all of this, they persuaded the government officials to have Jesus executed through crucifixion – which is a slow death by hanging on a cross (a much nastier version of modern day lethal injection or even a firing squad). So, from their perspective they wanted Jesus out of their lives permanently, but from God’s perspective He allowed this sequence of events to play out so that He could give an incredible example of the kind of love that He has for you, and for all humans, by providing a means of forgiveness based upon His paying for all of our relational violations on the cross. And after Jesus died, He then did another amazing thing by rising from the dead! Death could not hold Him since He was indeed God and also flawless in that He had never committed a relational violation Himself. His resurrection shows that God’s payment for us on the cross is complete! It is paid in full, so to speak!

The crucifixion of Jesus can seem a little strange at first if we do not realize it is God Himself paying for all of the relational violations. In other words, it is not like a parent (God) who beats up their child (Jesus) so that they can be kind to the other kids in the neighborhood (us) on behalf of that beat up child. If such were the case, we would most likely conclude that God is not truly loving. So it was not just Jesus as a human taking on physical punishment, instead it was the huge heart of God taking on all the relational violations that all humans have done toward each other and toward Him. Our guess is that the heart of God is probably much bigger than at least from the earth to the moon, since God Himself is larger than our universe and even larger than we can comprehend.

And that huge heart of God was filled with pain as it took on all of the pain of all relational violations. The thought of doing this for just one person is amazing let alone for all people of all times! So this was an amazing demonstration and sample of the kind of love that God has for you!

The cross establishes an anchor for how loving God is toward you and can help you to understand certain questions such as, "Is God a distant God or does He truly love me and care that I have to deal with the challenges of life?" The cross shows you that God has a tremendous heart of love for you and is willing to suffer more on your behalf than any suffering that you will face in life. With the same kind of love God had for you when He hung on the cross and paid for all of your relational violations, He is willing to walk through life with you and to help you with all of the challenges that you go through. So, if you are willing to commit your life to God, and receive His love and forgiveness according to His payment for you on the cross, then He is willing to forgive you and to even come and live inside of you through His Holy Spirit – and then to help you from the inside! For God to be willing to be so close to you that He is willing to live inside of you by His Spirit is incredible! Instead of you having to live like an orphan out on your own, God is willing to adopt you into His family – under His wings, so to speak! Instead of abandoning you, God is willing to always be with you – even with you through any suffering that you wind up going through. So, if you understand that God loves you that much and He is inviting you into a wonderful privileged partnership of friendship with Himself, and you are willing to put that friendship as a top priority so that He can free you into all that He knows you are uniquely designed to be and to become, then God's work on the cross on your behalf is the needed key for you to access all of this.

So putting all of this together, here are steps you can take to have all of the relational barriers removed between you and God and to come into a close friendship with Him. You could say the following to God out loud or in your heart/mind:

I commit my life to You for all of the things described in the 'Thing 3' section, since these things are needed for a privileged partnership of friendship with You to work well. I am sorry for all of the relational violations I have made toward You, others, and myself. I look to You to help me to avoid such violations in the future. I ask You to forgive me according to Your payment for me on the cross. Please fill me with a great measure of You (Your Holy Spirit) and please help me to become a wonderful friend to You as I join You in a privileged partnership of friendship. According to the name of Jesus I ask You for these things.
Thank You!

What an amazing step you just took! It is even more amazing than the miracle of your leg growing out!

Now that you have taken this amazing step, you may wonder if there is anything that can help you to do well in your friendship with God. There are two things that we would highly recommend.

The first thing is in regard to what we had shared with you earlier, when we said:

So, this being is able to activate a light in you, so to speak, so that you can not only know the reality that this being actually exists, but you can also have a wonderful friendship with this being! Later on we will explain more about how you can turn on this light by asking this invisible being to turn on the light for you.

So now that you have already asked God to forgive you and to fill you with His Holy Spirit, we would recommend that you say the following to God out loud or in your heart/mind:

God, please turn on the light, so to speak, so that I can know the reality of Your existence. And in this, please give me an incredible knowledge of Your presence with me. According to the name of Jesus, I ask this of You. Thank You.

We think it is incredible that God can enable us to know His presence and to grow us in a great friendship with Him. And we find that asking Him for such things is really helpful to do.

The second thing we would highly recommend is that you would read the fairly short Deeper Friendships which we are providing free of charge for you at www.DeeperFriendships.com. It builds upon Would you like to see an Amazing Miracle? and gives additional details in what we have found to be very helpful in a life of friendship with God.

We hope you have enjoyed reading Would you like to see an Amazing Miracle? and have enjoyed seeing at least one miracle! And we also hope it has helped you toward the greatest treasure of living a life of friendship with God!

Warmest regards,

Scott and Bonna Brooks
